

RAIN AND SUN

Sharma Komal Bansidhar

Research Scholar
Sheth Damodardas School of Commerce
Gujarat University- 380009
sharma.komal0096@gmail.com
ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-9121-5362>

Rain and sun, two forces of nature's might,
Each with its own presence, casting its light.
Both hold beauty in their contrasting ways,
Let's explore their essence, like a poetic phrase.

Rain, the gentle weeper from the skies above,
With every drop, a story of love.
It quenches the earth's thirst, nurturing life,
Reviving barren lands with each rhythmic strife.

It falls as tears of joy or sorrow's release,
Cleansing the world, offering a sense of peace.
Its pitter-patter on rooftops is a melodic rhyme,
A lullaby for nature in its own sublime.

Rain paints the world in hues of vibrant greens,
Filling rivers, lakes, and soothing earth's seams.
It coaxes flowers to bloom, dancing in delight,
A transient masterpiece, a moment so bright.

And then, the sun emerges, a celestial blaze,
With golden rays, it sets the world ablaze.
It breathes life into shadows, casting them away,
Igniting dreams and aspirations every day.

The sun, a radiant guardian in the sky,
A warming embrace, bidding darkness goodbye.
It blankets the world with its brilliant glow,
Bestowing energy, painting landscapes with a vibrant show.

Under its gaze, life awakens and thrives,
From blossoming flowers to buzzing beehives.
It bathes the world in a tapestry of hues,
Inviting us to bask, to chase away the blues.

Rain and sun, like yin and yang they entwine,
Both necessary for Earth's grand design.
In their juxtaposition, a harmonious dance,
Balancing forces, offering life a chance.

So, let us cherish both rain and sun's embrace,
For in their union, nature finds its grace.
Their contrasting elements, a reminder profound,
That in duality's symphony, true beauty is found.